Jangada Coffee Table

by Ronald Sasson, 2017

By design, the Jangada coffee table encapsulates classic fishing boats from the Northeast of Brazil; Ronald Sasson exercises a certain poetic license, considerate of forms and their origins, and resulting in distinct sophistication. This piece is made entirely of hardwood.

Ronald Sasson

Ronald Sasson was born in Curitiba, Brazil, in 1967 and has been attracted to designing objects since his teenage years. He moved to Paris when he was 18 years old and spent a year deeply involved in the conceptual and neo-experimental art gallery worlds.

He later moved to Israel where he interned at tapestry companies and completely immersed himself in learning about fabrics and textures.

Once back in Brazil, he worked for 7 years as a fine artist, where he was selected to be a part of several art salons. Around this time he started to self-teach himself how to design furniture, always merging his authorial artistic base with industrial and replication possibilities.

Sasson has received more than 26 international awards including 3 IF Design Award Germany, 4 German Design Award Nominee, 6 Good Design Award Chicago, 7 A'Design Award Italy, 1 Restaurant & Bar Award England also 1 the Design Prize of The Casa Vogue Brazil 18, and the Prize of the Museum of the Brazilian House.

Most recently, he has exhibited his work at the Biennale di Venezia in 2018, Artgenève Montecarlo in 2017, NHOW Milan 2016 and the collective exhibitions , Frio and Marble History in Brazil.
