

Jake Bench

by Fernando Mendes, 2004

The first piece by Fernando Mendes' to be available on the market, the 'Jake' is named after the 4-year old boy from New York for whom it was originally designed, as his parents sought a 'step stool' for him to reach the bookshelves. The lateral pieces and seat fit into one another, recalling the form of a small carpentry bench. Remnants of freijó wood are used by the designer, so each stool has a unique color and identity.

- Base structure made of solid Freijó wood
- Made to order
